

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BE A PEOPLE OF MEMORY?

A Soul Matters friend raises the questions, "What is it that takes you back, and where does it take you?"

Maybe it's the taste of pumpkin pie that takes you back to family Thanksgivings from long ago. Maybe the smell of ginger or popcorn takes you to your parent's kitchen when you were six. Maybe the face of a new acquaintance reminds you of your great uncle, now long dead. Maybe a balloon drifting into the sky makes you think of a day of celebration years ago.

"What takes you back?" invites us to see memory as having its own volition. Not a skill we manipulate, but a sacred energy that "wants" something from us, or "hopes" something for us.

And "Where does it take you?" Well, that's a big question too. The space of memory is elusive. Mysterious. Seemingly beyond our grasp. Who can really say "where" it is?

What we know is that in the space of memory we are somehow held together, and also re-assembled. Our memories create the stories that create our identities. As we remember, we are re-membered. In that space, memories become these self-animated threads that weave the pieces and parts of us into this more complete thing we call "me" and "you."

It's so humbling, and remarkable!

Which makes it all the more sad that, throughout much of our history, we Unitarian Universalists have not always been nice to memory. We've given it the label, "tradition," and often treated it as something that holds us back. Tradition, we say, cuts us off from a direct experience with the holy and tries to shape us rather than allowing us the freedom to shape ourselves. This attitude has left us, as a faith, wary of the past, depicting it simply as a place where one gets stuck.

On the other hand, tradition, memory and history help us know who we are because they tell us where we came from. Our Soul Matters friend captures this change perfectly. For her the past is not a place that traps us; it's more like soil that clings tightly to our roots in order to nourish and stabilize us. If memory had a voice, it wouldn't sing "remember me." It would call out, "don't forget who you are."

And so, friends, this month, may that be our charge: To allow memory to flow through us in order that it may patch us back together and keep us whole.

Happy re-membering, re-assembling and re-collecting!

NOVEMBER 2018 SUNDAY SERVICES

OUR THEME IN NOVEMBER EXPLORES
"WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BE A PEOPLE OF MEMORY?"

NOVEMBER 4 "CURATING OUR HISTORY: DECIDING WHAT TO REMEMBER"

Rev Jonalu Johnstone speaks. Both individuals and institutions remember their histories in particular ways, shaped not only by what happened in the moment, but also by our perceptions and even by what happened subsequently. Yet, we rely on having a past to know how to live into our future. How can we trust our memories? And how can we decide what to remember? Convener is Kathleen Oldfather at 537-3738 or kjoldfather@gmail.com.

NOVEMBER 11 "ELECTIONS PAST AND PRESENT"

Rev Jonalu Johnstone presents this reflection. Colonial New England had a tradition of election sermons, sermons preached to the newly elected government meant to guide the elected in godly ways. While we hardly expect any governmental officials to monitor what we say at UUFM, it seems timely to consider what past elections have taught us and what we need to prepare for as we move forward from the election this week. Post-election, how do we come together as a people? What do history and memory call us to as citizens and Unitarian Universalists? Convener is Rob Morrison at 480 861-1732 or william.robert.morrison@gmail.com.

NOVEMBER 18 "REMEMBERING WHERE WE CAME FROM: A SERVICE FOR ALL AGES"

Rev Jonalu Johnstone shares. Approaching Thanksgiving can be a good time to examine our history and consider where we came from. We'll consider the Wampanoag version of Thanksgiving history, share cornbread and apple cider, and learn about "justice across borders," the theme for this year's Guest at Your Table program. Convener is Terry Hardley at 708 214-2392 or tfregapane@gmail.com.

NOVEMBER 25 "ARE WE REALLY MADE OF STAR STUFF?"

Physicist and longtime Fellowship member Larry Weaver joins us for one his always engaging and enlightening presentations. Contact Larry at 539-3176 or lweaver@phys.ksu.edu.

UUFM is a
WELCOMING CONGREGATION
 Learn more about the Welcoming Congregation initiative at www.uua.org/lgbtq/welcoming/program

We are Unitarian Universalists. We are brave, curious, and compassionate thinkers and doers. We are believers in what is good, what is right, and what is just ... We are a house without walls, a congregation without spiritual boundaries, and a movement towards a more action-oriented faith in yourself, your god, and your beliefs.

Those words come from the UUA Brand Report, based on interviews with a large number of Unitarian Universalists about what is significant in UUism. You might put it a little differently, but you probably agree with the gist of it.

Nine of us from UUFM, along with representatives from four other UU congregations learned about UUism, where we fit within the changing religious landscape, and how we might be able to reach out in love, during the Love Reaches Out workshop on October 20.

We also brainstormed ideas for helping people in the community to know who we are and what we represent.

There are already many ways that we show up in the community. UUFM members have consistently testified before City Commission for LGBTQ rights; supported charitable organizations with money, goods, and volunteer hours; and shown up for rallies against hate and for racial justice. When we have shown up, though, people haven't always recognized us as UU's. Our individual members are strong supporters of Manhattan Alliance for Peace and Justice, and our building hosts Little Apple Pride meetings. Still, the community's knowledge of us is vague. We need to make sure the community knows who we are and what we believe in.

Here are some ideas that came out of the workshop:

- Participate in the holiday parade.
- Create a publicity campaign for Our Whole Lives.
- Sell real, healthy food at Purple Power Play (and provide recycling!)
- Bring our Musicales out into the community by holding it at Peace Memorial Auditorium (or another location outside our building so more people can attend)
- Use our gardening skills and interests to connect with community needs

These are not necessarily things that will happen. They are ideas. If there is interest, we may pursue them. So, the next step is to see who might be interested in what. If you want to work on one of these ideas, talk with our Chair Jessica Sievers, Chair-Elect Mark Mayfield, or with me. It's better to tackle one or two things well, with enthusiasm and with many people, than to try to do many things and not make as profound an impression.

CIRCLE DINNERS ARE COMING AGAIN !!!

Members and friends are invited to sign up for monthly Circle Dinners. Groups of 5 or 6 adults (children are welcome, too) gather for a good meal in a comfortable setting (home, restaurant, or the Fellowship), hosted by a different member of the group each month. These get-togethers allow new members and friends to get acquainted, and provide a wonderful way for old friends to connect. Groups will be shuffled every 6 months, so that we can all get to know each other. Those who don't want to commit every month may sign up to substitute when a regular member can't attend. If you have questions, suggestions, or ideas, please contact Madilena Mendiola at 858 472-8326 or madilenam@gmail.com. If you're ready to join a Circle Dinner group, just sign up on the sheet provided in the narthex, and you will be contacted.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION NEWS

Students continue to enjoy explorations of Unitarian Universalism and our seven principles.

A big thank you to all the folks we've had in the classrooms so far this fall ... Molly McGaughey, Matt Sayre, Austin Roberts, Christie Launius, Susan Rensing, Carrie Cave, and Lily Colburn. Having all these new faces allows our students to interact with UUFM adults in a whole new way. (And the adults are enjoying a new perspective as well!)

November signals the start of the UUSC "Guest at Your Table" program. Watch for more information about this important fundraising project [more about Guest at Your Table on page 5 of this newsletter].
